Computers and Electronics

Illinois' new Electronic Products Recycling and Reuse Act (Public Act 95-0959) became effective on January 1, 2010. Manufacturers of computers, televisions, computer monitors, and printers must now implement recycling and refurbishment programs for these four products when discarded from residences. E-waste generated by nonresidential sectors is not covered by the Act, with one notable exception-a provision that bans all computers, monitors, televisions, and printers from landfills as of January 1, 2012.

The Act's most important feature for Illinois residents is that there can be no charge for residential e-waste dropped off at a collection site or if there is a fee, a dollar-for-dollar coupon good off the price of new equipment must be given in exchange. Charges are permitted for services like curbside collection or home pick-up.
